A FUNNY WAY TO EARN A LIVING

LIVELY TOM, 69, SKATES FOR TESCO: He gets paid for putting on his roller skates

Tom Hopperton is one of 1200 over-60s working for the supermarkets Tesco. He's been working there for fifteen months. Before that, he was a plumber for thirty years.

Tom skates about five miles a day around the store fetching things for customers who realize that they've forgotten something only when they've reached the checkout till. He earns £4.50 an hour.

"I just love the job. I help the customers, so they're usually very nice to me. I've always liked meeting people. And it keeps me fit. I can't sit at home doing nothing. I'd just die. I have to keep busy. Time goes really quickly. Every day is different."

Tesco made the decision to employ people of all ages. It sees the advantages of older workers who are more calm and authoritative when they are dealing with customers.

"When I saw this job advertised, I didn't believe they'd give it to me," says Tom. "I went in to see them because I thought they would be put off by my age if I just phoned. I wanted them to see that I am very lively for my age."

FLYING FOR A LIVING: Cathy has made a career out of her passion

Cathy Moorhead has only ever had one job. She never wanted to do anything but be in a hot air balloon, going where the wind takes her, listening to the birds, and watching deer and small animals below her.

She gets paid for it, about £25,000 a year. I've been flying balloon since I was 10, and I have done it professionally for twelve years. I fly between 10 and 20 passengers in different balloons. "The flights usually last an hour, and they go early in the morning or just before sunset." "The trips are always mystery tours," she says. "I never know where we're going to land."

She starts work at about 6 a.m., and works anything from 15 hours a day to nothing if the weather is bad. "We can't fly if it's too windy, if visibility is poor, or if it's raining. The balloon gets too heavy and the passengers get wet." What's the best thing about the job? "The job itself! I love being in the countryside and I hate routines. So this is heaven for me."
